TOURS

Lynden offers docent-led and self-guided tours for schools and other organized groups: Art as an Avenue to EcoAwareness and Sculpture: Modern and Contemporary, which introduces the sculpture of several major 20th-century artists in our collection, as well as temporary installations on the grounds. Consider staying for a picnic lunch or outdoor drawing session, weather permitting.

FIELD TRIPS

Designed for grades K-12, Lynden's two-hour field trips focus on outdoor inquiry and experiential learning, teaching art-making skills within the framework of environmental investigation and an exploration of historical, social, and cultural contexts. Students develop an understanding of place by challenging their observational skills and discovering relationships between art, nature, self, and community. Most field trips are offered year-round and address a variety of state and national standards. Our newest field trip, available April through October, explores the imaginative and material worlds of a 19th-century woman of African descent through artist Fodayemi Wilson's installation, Eliza's Peculiar Cabinet of Curiosities. We also offer 90-minute, age-appropriate field trips for the very young (ages 3-5).

Needs-based fee subsidies and tuition waivers are available for all of our education programs.

Clement Meadmore: The Models

Through March 31, 2019

Clement Meadmore is represented in Lynden's permanent collection by two exuberant monumental outdoor works, Upstart (1967) and Double Up (1970). Clement Meadmore: The Models continues our exploration of the work and creative processes of artists in our collection, many of whom were also making smaller sculpture, furniture, or works on paper. In this exhibition, organized in collaboration with Meadmore Sculptures, we display eight models—some of them used to this day to fabricate Meadmore's large-scale works—as well as an etching. These works were often executed at a variety of scales, and the exhibition includes a slightly larger bronze version of Hobnob, also represented by a polymer resin model. Watch for additional public programming in 2019.

UPCOMING EXHIBITIONS

Spring: Evelyn Patricia Terry

Summer: Rosemary Ollison

Fall: Robert Murray

 Call & Response is an ongoing project that gathers a community of artists who share a commitment to the radical Black imagination as a means to re-examine the past and imagine a better future.
